Celery has been cultivated for thousands of years and was probably first grown in the Mediterranean and Middle East. Archeologists discovered celery leaves in King Tut's tomb. A bunch of celery was used as an ancient bouquet of flowers to reward winners of athletic games in Ancient Greece. Ancient Greeks and Romans used celery as a flavoring and the ancient Chinese used it for medicine. <small>This institution is an equal opportunity employer Menu subject to change.</small>
